
PhD in Philosophy of Religion

The programme is carried out in cooperation with the Philosophical Institute of the Czech Academy of Sciences . A dissertation in Philosophy of Religion may deal with a variety of topics related to the philosophy of religion, philosophy in its relation to religious issues, or history of religious ideas. The typical methodology is the analysis of philosophical or religious texts in their original languages.

Before applying, the candidates are supposed to consult their dissertation project with their potential supervisors recommended by the guarantor of the programme. During the interview, the project is discussed and knowledge of the languages required for its realisation is checked.

Postgraduate doctoral studies in Philosophy of Religion are guaranteed by:

Prof. Lenka Karfíková, Dr. theol. Head of Department of Philosophy

see more

Field of expertise: philosophy and theology of late antiquity and the Middle Ages

Other supervisors and their fields of expertise

RELIGIOUS STUDIES

| | |
|--|--|
| Prof. Pavel Hošek, Ph.D. | the relationship between theology and culture, the relationship between theology and the science of religion, assumptions and possibilities of interfaith dialogue |
|--|--|

HISTORY

| | |
|--|--|
| Ass. Prof. Ota Halama, Ph.D. | medieval and reformation history in general, especially the history and thinking of the Czech Reformation and its traditions |
|--|--|

PHILOSOPHY

Supervisors in the field of philosophy may also be assigned from among the senior researchers of the Philosophical Institute of the Czech Academy of Sciences.

Back to the general page on Doctoral studies in English

If you have further questions....

Assoc. Prof. Petr Sláma, Ph.D. Vice-Dean for Doctoral Studies

slama@etf.cuni.cz

(+420) 221 988 418

Karolína Surovcová Doctoral Program Liaison

surovcova@etf.cuni.cz

(+420) 221 988 210