Fees and Scholarships

Tuition fees and living expenses in Prague

At present the Faculty does not charge tuition fees for study programmes taught in Czech, nor for the Short-Term Studies programme for Erasmus and other exchange students.

Tuition fees for study programmes taught in other languages are indicated for the programmes individually.

Students must of course be responsible for their living costs in Prague. Students who need a visa must demonstrate that they have sufficient funds to meet their living costs, and that they have health insurance, in order to obtain the visa.

Scholarships and financial support

The Faculty's financial position unfortunately does not allow it to provide scholarships to students from other countries. However, it may be possible to obtain scholarships or financial support from other sources, such as the bilateral governmental agreements that the Czech Republic has with a number of other countries, local or international church organisations, or other foundations.
