Bachelor's Programme Social Work / Social Pedagogy

In professional circles in German speaking countries, “Soziale Arbeit” is the umbrella term commonly used for the fields of Social Work and Social Education / Social Pedagogy.

- A large variety of working areas are opened up to those studying with us: school social work; supporting the homeless, people with disabilities or addiction problems; helping migrants and asylum seekers; caring for the elderly or dementia patients and their relatives; social work with offenders – to name but a few.
- A new addition to our courses that students can opt for as part of the Social Work programme is “International Social Work”, which conveys insights into social work and its conditions in other countries as well as discussing international and transnational perspectives. Students will also gain intercultural competencies.
- Studying for only three more semesters gives you the option to complete a Bachelor degree in Religious Education as well. Those wishing to expand upon selected competencies can opt for additional qualifications: Experiential and Environmental Education, SPOSA – Sport and Social Work, RECOS – Social Work in Germany / France / Switzerland, and Art Education.
- The Bachelor degree can be followed by the research-oriented Master’s programme in Social Work.
- Dual qualification possible: the Bachelor programmes Social Work and Religious Education and Diaconia are structured in the same way and also show many similarities in terms of content. Within the course of three additional semesters, a degree in the other programme of study can be obtained as well.

Religious Education and Diaconia

- The Bachelor's programme Religious Education and Diaconia provides a qualification for a very diverse career revolving around the human being and around generating meaning. The degree opens up great opportunities for working in German regional protestant and in free churches: as a deacon, you can work in a church, diaconate or school with people of different age groups as well as varying personal circumstances and living environments, for example. Or you can teach religious studies at schools up to and including lower secondary education (ISCED 2).
- By adding a period of study shortened to only three semesters you can obtain a dual qualification with a second Bachelor degree in Social Work. The practical work placement offers the option to concentrate on the international perspective of ecclesiastical work.
- Only at the EH Freiburg: unique throughout Germany, we have initiated the project "Intergenerational Living and Learning", as part of which Religious Education students have the chance to live in a retirement home – in affordable modern apartments, combined with social learning.
- With our additional qualifications, you will gain competencies in selected areas: Healthcare and Preventive Care, Experiential and Environmental Education, Art Education, Sport Education (SPOSA).
- Dual qualification possible: the Bachelor's Programmes Social Work and Religious Education and Diaconia are structured in the same way and also show many similarities in terms of content. Within the course of three additional semesters, a degree in the other study programmes can be obtained as well.
